

Example of unsolicited expressions of public interest in the Ovulona™

Not to be read as suggestive of any faith bias, merely as evidence of avid interest among the particular sub-population referenced in this example email. The statement that “people are more open to learning Natural Family Planning with the help of an assistance device” is significant, and pertains to the general population, not only to the Catholics.

Hello Vaclav Kirsner,

Thank you for your response. As to the purpose of my inquiry, I am Catholic and know many Catholics who struggle with the Church's teaching on birth control. I also know that people are more open to learning Natural Family Planning with the help of an assistance device. Therefore, I have spent no small amount of time and resources staying abreast of the latest in NFP science and technology. The technology of your invention looked promising so I wanted to know the status of your project.

Will a prototype soon be available? How does your product compare to the Ovacue by Zetek for NFP use?

There are over 65 million Catholics in the United States and over 1 billion in the world. That market alone is would look to have great potential for an efficient, effective NFP assistance device.

Thank you and best wishes with your work,

Arthur Duran
